ABSTRACT

This directory of study-abroad programs provides information on over 1,500 postsecondary study programs that take place in countries other than the United States during the academic year. An introductory section describes the organization of the listings (which provide program sponsor and name, location, dates, subjects, credit, eligibility, instruction, highlights, costs, housing, deadline and contact). A chapter on planning for study abroad discusses: researching the options (language proficiency, geographic location, the third world, disabled students, and adult learners); educational choices (types of programs, sponsorship by consortia, direct enrollment, vacation study programs, internships, and voluntary service projects); finances (scholarships and work abroad); travel and living (laws and customs; accommodations; passports, visas and vaccinations; medical insurance and other health concerns; and transportation); and programs administered by the Institute of International Education (IIE). Program listings are divided into two major sections: programs sponsored by accredited U.S. colleges and universities; and programs sponsored by non-U.S. colleges and universities, language schools, and other U.S. and foreign organizations. Within each section, program listings are divided into the following categories: worldwide; Africa, south of the Sahara; Asia and Oceania; Europe; Middle East and North Africa; and the Western Hemisphere. Two appendices provide a list of consortia and a summary of the U.S. study-abroad census. Two indexes, by sponsoring institution and by field of study, conclude the book. (KM)

ADVERTISING POLICY

Advertising in Academic Year Abroad Part 1: Programs Sponsored by Accredited U.S. Colleges and Universities is open to accredited U.S. higher educational institutions which sponsor study-abroad programs described in this book—and to other organizations if their programs are formally cosponsored by an accredited U.S. institution.

Advertising in Academic Year Abroad Part 2: Programs Sponsored by Foreign Universities and Other Organizations is open to sponsors of study programs worldwide whose programs are listed in the IIE study-abroad guides.

The Institute of International Education does not attempt to evaluate programs listed in the book, nor can it verify statements made by advertisers in their ads. Inclusion of a program or advertisement does not imply IIE recommendation, nor does omission imply IIE disapproval.

Please note that program listings are free of charge and are provided by IIE as a public educational service. They are not contingent upon the purchase of advertising space by the sponsor.

HOW TO USE THIS BOOK

Academic Year Abroad provides the most relevant items of information on over 1,500 postsecondary study programs that take place in other countries during the academic year; they vary in length from an academic quarter (about eight to ten weeks) to a full academic year or more. The programs listed in PART 1 of this book are sponsored or cosponsored by accredited U.S. colleges and universities; PART 2 lists programs offered by nonaccredited U.S. institutions, foreign universities, language schools, and other U.S. and foreign organizations.

The information in the program entries is based on a survey conducted in May 1987. Questionnaires were sent to all sponsors of programs listed in the 1987/88 edition of this book, to organizations that informed IIE of new programs after publication of that edition, and to all U.S. colleges and universities listed in Accredited Institutions of Postsecondary Education 1986/87, published by the American Council on Education for the Council on Postsecondary Accreditation. In addition, this year IIE launched a massive effort to reach all non-U.S. universities and language schools through the purchase of comprehensive mailing lists of these institutions.

IIE has published its series of study-abroad guides for over 30 years. U.S. colleges and universities—some 550 of which are IIE Educational Associate member institutions—have traditionally been highly responsive to the Institute's surveys for these books, as have the other U.S. and foreign organizations that offer study programs open to U.S. nationals. Given this invaluable cooperation, Academic Year Abroad is as comprehensive as IIE can make it.

IIE tries to make the information contained in this book as accurate and useful as possible. Bear in mind, however, that information-gathering in publishing takes place long before a book appears—often before program arrangements can be finalized. For this reason, it's a good idea to use this book as a general resource for locating programs of interest.

Final and full information on any program, particularly dates and costs, must be obtained directly from the program sponsor.

Students interested in summer or short-term study abroad should consult the companion volume to this book, Vacation Study Abroad, which lists over 1,000 programs sponsored by U.S. and foreign colleges and universities, language schools, private agencies, adult education centers, and other organizations around the world.

To derive maximum benefit from Academic Year Abroad, be sure to read this section, "HOW TO USE THIS BOOK," carefully. It explains how the entries are organized and the various terms used in the program listings.

The special chapter entitled "PLANNING FOR STUDY ABROAD" should also be reviewed thoroughly. It describes the types of programs available, how to select one appropriate to your needs, how to arrange academic credit for your studies abroad, and a variety of other pertinent topics.

We are always pleased to receive suggestions for improving our books. Write to: Edrice Marguerite Howard, Editor, IIE Publications, 809 United Nations Plaza, New York, NY 10017. Information on programs not listed in this edition is also welcome; please enclose a flyer or brochure when you write to us about a new program.

The information contained in this book—complemented by the guidance of an experienced study-abroad adviser if you are currently enrolled at a college—can help you plan and prepare for what may be one of the most delightful and rewarding experiences of your life.

Overall Organization of the Program Listings

The programs are arranged first by the geographical region in which they take place: Africa South of the Sahara, Asia and Oceania, Europe, the Middle East, and the Western Hemisphere. Each region is subdivided alphabetically by country and then by city, province, region, or island. Within each city subsection, the arrangement is alphabetical by the names of the sponsoring institutions.

In addition to the specific country and city listings, there is a "Worldwide" chapter at the beginning of the book for programs that operate in more than one region of the world. Similarly, there are "More Than One Country" listings at the beginning of each chapter and "More Than One City" listings at the front of each country section.

Remember to consult these general worldwide, regional, and country sections in addition to listings for specific cities.

Program Sponsor and Name

Each entry begins with a number used to identify the program within the listing sequence and in the indexes at the back of the book. The name of the sponsoring institution is next, followed by the program title.

Many study-abroad programs are sponsored cooperatively by groups of colleges and organizations, or consortia. Consortia with more than five members are listed in Appendix A.

Location

This line identifies the countries or cities in which resident study takes place. Some programs include travel to other places, and others offer orientation in cities other than those in which the program is based. Orientation and incidental travel are noted in the "Highlights" section of the entry, but the programs are listed under the country and city where the major portion of resident study takes place.

Dates

Exact dates are stated if provided by the program sponsor. Enrollment is generally for the full period indicated. If you may enroll for less than the full period, the dates will be followed by the statement "students may enroll for ...".

Remember that final program dates were often not available at the time our survey was conducted; for current information, contact the sponsor.

Subjects

Courses of study available through the program are listed here, along with information on concentrations and specialization, and the availability of independent study, student teaching, and internships. Consult INDEX II: Fields of Study, for assistance in locating programs in your specific field.

Credit

The availability of academic credit is indicated after this heading. It may be expressed in quarter hours, semester hours, or course credits, depending upon the practice of the program sponsor. Undergraduate credits are listed first, then graduate credits.

Consult your academic or study-abroad adviser about receiving academic credit before you enroll in a program, particularly if it is sponsored by a school other than your own. Remember that transfer credit is never automatic; it must be arranged in advance.

On the graduate level, be especially careful to clarify the awarding of academic credit in advance. Some programs accept graduate students only as auditors.

Eligibility

If a program is limited to students of the sponsoring institution or consortium, this restriction or preference will be indicated here in bold italics.

HOW TO USE THIS BOOK

The academic level is listed next: freshmen, sophomores, juniors, seniors, graduates, professionals or adult students. The term "undergraduates" is used to mean all undergraduates. "Precollege" will generally mean high school graduates who have not yet entered college. "Adults" usually refers to persons age 18 or over with no specific academic background. Some sponsors list a minimum age requirement rather than an academic level.

Other eligibility requirements and course prerequisites are mentioned last in this section and usually require clarification by the sponsor, since space considerations do not permit us to list them fully.

Instruction

The first item provided here is the language in which courses are taught. Where more than one language is listed, consult the program sponsor for exact information. Foreign language courses are usually taught in the language being studied, while other courses may be taught in English. For courses taught exclusively in a foreign language, be sure to determine in advance whether your level of fluency is sufficient to understand the course content.

Entries then indicate the type of courses students attend: courses specifically arranged for the program group (in which most of the participants will be U.S. nationals), special courses for foreigners at a foreign institution (where Americans mingle with other foreign students), or regular courses from the general curriculum of a foreign institution (in these classes, U.S. students can expect to sit next to, and compete with, native students).

The term "foreign faculty" generally refers to instructors native to the host country, while "U.S. faculty" usually means faculty of the sponsoring institution.

For a full discussion of the types of study-abroad courses and programs, see the chapter on "PLANNING FOR STUDY ABROAD."

Highlights

This section includes information on the year the program was established, orientation, program-related and miscellaneous travel, and the availability of a postsession review. The postsession review, or re-entry session, is designed to help the student analyze, digest, and utilize his experiences abroad.

The last item in this section is "program evaluations." These may take any form from a list of former participants who have agreed to be contacted to a full academic review by a faculty committee; they are a valuable resource to use in evaluating programs.

The phrase "Contact with previous participants available" is also used. This indicates that the sponsor, if requested, will provide contact with a former student—by mail, phone, or in person. Some sponsors routinely invite former students to their orientation sessions. Make every effort to attend these sessions; the information you acquire from other students can be invaluable in helping you select the right program and prepare for a rewarding experience abroad.

Costs

In this section, we have asked sponsors to provide a fairly complete picture of the main expenses involved in their programs. Where possible, they have given a "package amount" for the full program, followed by a coded list of the items it includes. The codes are: T (tuition), B (books, reading materials, and/or other supplies), M (meals) or some M (fewer than three meals per day), RT (round-trip transportation between the U.S. and the program site), H (housing), E (excursions and field trips), F (fees connected with participation in the program), and HI (health/accident insurance).

A cost amount followed by "(1987)" indicates that fees for the 1988 program had not yet been set at the time information was submitted for this book; consult the sponsor for current information. The word "about" preceding the amount indicates the sponsor has estimated 1988 program fees; again, contact the sponsor directly for more up-to-date information.

HOW TO USE THIS BOOK

If any type of financial aid (other than loans) is available to participants in the program, the phrase "scholarships available" is used. We have indicated the availability of "work-study" in a similar fashion.

Housing

Most programs provide housing for members of the group. Entries indicate the type of housing available. Organizations that do not provide living facilities will generally assist in locating available housing in the area.

Deadline

In most cases, deadlines are for the receipt of completed applications with all necessary supporting material: transcripts, recommendations, deposits, etc. Find out well in advance what application material is needed.

Occasionally programs will admit students after the deadline is past, but usually only when a program has not filled all allotted places. It is best not to count on luck, however. Apply early!

Contact

The primary contact for information and applications is the individual, department, or organization listed first; full addresses, phone numbers, and telex numbers are provided, if available.

Programs sponsored by consortia will often list the administering school as the primary contact, followed by a reference to "see Appendix A" for contact information at member schools. The usual rule in this situation is that students at member schools apply to their campus study-abroad office, while students at nonmember schools should contact the main consortium office or the administering school.

IMPORTANT NOTICE

The Institute of International Education does not attempt to review or evaluate programs listed in this book. Inclusion of a program does not imply IIE recommendation, nor does omission imply IIE disapproval. Program evaluations and additional information must be requested directly from the program sponsor, NOT from IIE.

PLANNING FOR STUDY ABROAD

Study abroad can be an extraordinary adventure in which the educational experiences do not start or stop at the classroom door, or even at the edge of the campus. In contrast to the relatively sheltered life found at many U.S. colleges, study in a foreign setting exposes the student to a whole gamut of new cultural experiences—experiences that open up fresh perspectives on international political and economic issues, interpersonal relationships, and ultimate career choices.

Even an adventure, however, benefits from planning. How well you achieve your immediate personal and academic objectives, as well as your long-range career goals, depends heavily on choosing the right country, institution, and program. Because of the complex choices to be made, planning should begin a full year before you expect to depart.

RESEARCHING THE OPTIONS

The range of study-abroad programs available is considerable. Many programs focus on specific academic disciplines, while others feature both academic and language study. A number of programs combine independent study or internships with traditional coursework.

Your choice of program should be determined by a realistic assessment of your academic preparation and objectives. If you are currently enrolled at a U.S. college or university, be sure to consult with either a study-abroad or Fulbright Program adviser, or a faculty member knowledgeable about foreign study programs. The adviser can help determine whether the programs you are considering will mesh with your educational goals—and whether you will receive academic credit for them.

It remains your responsibility, however, to research the alternatives thoroughly: contact the designated persons or departments to request program literature, ask specific questions, and review any program evaluations available. Try to get in touch with previous participants in programs that interest you. In addition, it may be helpful to meet with students from other countries to learn what it is like to be a "foreign student."

Allow plenty of time for this research—and expect to discover exciting educational possibilities you hadn't originally been aware of.

Language Proficiency

Foreign language proficiency is perhaps the single most important factor in choosing where to study. It is essential to be completely realistic about your level of competency. Holding a simple conversation or ordering a meal in another language is one thing; following a complicated lecture and reading scholarly books is something else entirely.

U.S. college-sponsored programs may be conducted in cooperation with a foreign institution or may be taught by foreign faculty. In such cases, the language of instruction is typically the language of the host country. The minimum requirement for most U.S.-sponsored programs is two years of college-level language study or the equivalent.

Study abroad offers an incomparable opportunity to learn the language and culture of another country. In addition to other courses of study, you may want to review the variety of language and culture/civilization programs available at foreign universities and language schools listed in PART 2 of this book, as well as the U.S. college-sponsored programs described in PART 1.

Geographic Location

Geographic setting may be as important as academic characteristics in determining whether a program is appropriate for you. Large cities may offer excellent cultural opportunities but may also be expensive and impersonal. Small towns may offer more contact with local residents and a traditional way of life, but some students may find the provincial lifestyle too limiting.

No foreign study program can be a guaranteed perfect choice, however. Even when your needs are well matched to the program, you may suffer periods of loneliness and disorientation simply because of the unfamiliar environment. Remember that one of the most important lessons to be learned from time spent abroad is flexibility—and a willingness to go on enjoying and learning even when confronting unexpected circumstances.

The Third World

Study in the Third World can be especially meaningful for a variety of reasons. The fact that nearly three-quarters of the world's population live in these nations is bound to have a significant effect on the course of history. From an economic standpoint, it is worth noting that U.S. trade with Third World countries now approaches 40 percent of all U.S. imports and exports. In today's economically interdependent world, knowledge of Third World nations may prove to be a valuable career asset.

In addition, the cultures of the Third World countries pose a sharp contrast to that of the United States. They effectively challenge our customary assumptions about our own society and values and provide a unique perspective on our larger world role.

One legacy of colonialism in the Third World is that the language of instruction is often English, Spanish, or French rather than the native tongue. This generalization does not apply, however, to countries like China, which has an extensive scientific and technical literature of its own, and which draws large numbers of students to study its literature, languages, and cultures.

Disabled Students

Many educational institutions provide facilities for the handicapped. The extent to which these students can be accommodated, however, depends on the nature of their disabilities and the subject to be studied. Because disabled students may require special educational aids or services, they should discuss their needs with the program sponsors and investigate the possibility of obtaining supplementary funds to cover the costs of services required.

Information for the handicapped traveler is available from the U.S. branch of Mobility International (MIUSA), which publishes a newsletter and several booklets. For full details, write to MIUSA, P.O. Box 3551, Eugene, OR 97403.

Adult Learners

While most study-abroad programs are organized with the needs of college students in mind, a significant number admit adults with a personal or professional interest in study overseas. This is particularly true of summer and short-term programs, many of which are sponsored by adult or continuing education schools. The listings in Academic Year Abroad and Vacation Study Abroad indicate whether a program admits adults and/or professionals. Even when the entry indicates that the program is geared to the undergraduate or graduate level, it may be worthwhile to contact the sponsor to see if adults can be admitted as auditors.

Adults over the age of 60 may be interested in the international programs of Elderhostel, which combine the best traditions of education and hostelting for those of retirement age. For information, write to Elderhostel, 80 Boylston Street, Boston, MA 02116.

PLANNING

The Interhostel program of the University of New Hampshire is designed for those aged 50 and over. For details, write to Interhostel, Division of Continuing Education, University of New Hampshire, 24 Rosemary Lane, Durham, NH 03824.

EDUCATIONAL CHOICES

Before enrolling in a foreign study program, you must determine its effect on your degree and graduation requirements. Your academic and study-abroad advisers can help evaluate study abroad in relation to your academic needs and may assist in arranging academic credit.

U.S. college-sponsored programs generally award credit. Never assume, however, that credit will be granted automatically, or that you can wait until you complete the program to establish credit. Each school makes its own rules regarding transferable credits, and, if the program you select is not sponsored by your home institution, academic credit may not be accepted by it.

Once a proposed study program is approved by your adviser—and prior to departing from the United States—follow your school's specific procedure to ensure receipt of credit. It is strongly recommended that you secure a written document confirming that credit will be awarded. At some colleges or universities this may be done through the study-abroad office. At others, it will be handled by the admissions office or registrar. If there is no study-abroad adviser, your academic adviser can provide information.

Many U.S. colleges and universities allow students planning to study abroad to preregister for courses to be taken upon their return. This option should also be discussed with your study-abroad adviser prior to departure.

Types of Study-Abroad Programs

While undergraduates may enroll directly in degree-granting programs at foreign universities, they more often enroll in programs sponsored by their own or other U.S. colleges. One advantage of U.S. college-sponsored programs is that they allow students to study in a foreign environment while remaining within a U.S. academic framework. Even where much of the actual coursework is taken at a foreign university, academic credit is arranged through the sponsoring U.S. institution. In addition, special courses in the language and culture of the foreign country may be provided, and language requirements may be relaxed. Finally, the sponsoring college usually either provides or helps arrange nonacademic essentials, such as housing and round-trip transportation.

Most programs fall into one of these categories:

1. Study in a foreign institution combined with courses arranged for the group by the sponsoring institution—the most common form of study-abroad program. Courses taken at the foreign institution may consist of regular university courses, special courses for foreign students, courses in a specialized college (e.g., a teachers college or art school), or courses in a private institution offering special programs for foreign students. The courses arranged especially for the U.S. students may be taught either by faculty from the home campus or by foreign and U.S. faculty engaged by the program sponsors.

One benefit of this type of program is that it lets you study at a foreign institution while meeting requirements for your U.S. degree. It also offers readily available help with any difficulties you may encounter in the foreign courses.

These programs usually require some knowledge of the language of the country. Nonetheless, special university courses for U.S. or other foreign students generally have less exacting language requirements than regular university courses. And some programs offer a choice of foreign institutions, depending on the level of their language skills.

2. The program which is fully integrated into a foreign university or other college-level institution. In these, students enroll in a complete academic program in the foreign institution. (Some programs provide supplemental tutorials conducted by U.S. faculty.) Absolute fluency in the language of instruction is expected. Students must be able to follow lectures and take examinations along with natives of the country. These programs can be very exciting and challenging for students who qualify.

Since students enrolled in these programs will not have the opportunity to take any U.S. courses overseas, they must be sure to schedule required coursework at their home campuses.

3. The "island" program in which all courses are taught by faculty members of the sponsoring U.S. institution or by foreign faculty engaged specifically for the program. Students generally live together in housing leased by the sponsor.

Some of these programs offer intensive language study for language majors. More often, however, these programs are conducted largely in English. In many areas of the world, they offer the only opportunity for meaningful study for students without a good command of a foreign language.

An advantage of this type of program is that the sponsoring U.S. institution has as much control over the nature and quality of instruction as it has at home. The chief disadvantage is that U.S. students are isolated from the foreign academic milieu and may find themselves isolated socially as well.

Immediately following World War II, when the number of U.S. college-sponsored programs abroad began to grow rapidly, many programs were of this type. Today, however, more schools are developing programs which offer at least some courses in a foreign institution.

Nearly all the programs listed in this book fall into one of these categories. A few programs offer only independent study opportunities. In some of these, qualified students carry out preapproved research projects abroad and receive credit from their home institutions. In others, U.S. students enroll in foreign universities and receive credit from their own schools for coursework abroad. Independent study arrangements like these are made on an individual basis by the students and their schools.

Sponsorship by Consortia

Many of the programs listed in IIE's study-abroad guides are sponsored cooperatively by groups of U.S. colleges or consortia. Some are administered through central consortium offices, others by the participating schools who rotate administrative duties among themselves.

For students, it is unlikely to make any real difference whether a program is offered by one school or by a consortium. The chief advantage of cosponsored programs is that they sometimes feature specialized programs that individual schools find difficult to offer.

For schools, of course, the advantage of consortia sponsorship is the reduction of faculty and administrative work and costs. Consortia with large numbers of participating schools are listed in Appendix A of this book. Cosponsoring institutions of programs with five or fewer sponsors are listed in the individual entries. There is an index of all sponsoring institutions at the end of this book.

Direct Enrollment

It is also possible to enroll directly in many foreign universities, language schools, and other educational institutions. Direct enrollment is an option more often chosen by graduate students than by undergraduates, both because graduate students are more likely to be able to profit from specialized study programs abroad, and because many foreign universities require that new U.S. students already possess a bachelor's degree.

To enroll directly in a foreign university, look into the laws affecting higher education in the country where you plan to study. Some countries have quotas for the number of international students at their universities and restrictions on the numbers of foreign students admitted to particular fields, such as medicine, dentistry, the sciences, and law. Because such restrictions may change from year to year, investigate current regulations early in the planning process.

Since admission policies vary from country to country and institution to institution, it is advisable to write directly to institutions you are interested in for specific information on their policies, requirements, costs, and facilities. To ensure a response, enclose an International Reply coupon (available from any Post Office) with your inquiry.

Remember that, since educational systems vary, no foreign degree is exactly equivalent to a U.S. degree. If you are interested in graduate studies abroad, be sure to conduct extensive research on the educational systems of the countries which interest you. Study-abroad advisers can be invaluable in helping you acquire the information you need to make a decision.

Another useful source of information is the World Education Series, published by the American Association of Collegiate Registrars and Admissions Officers (AACRAO). Although designed for college admissions officers who need to evaluate foreign academic credentials, these publications provide an overview of each country's educational system. Write AACRAO, One DuPont Circle, Washington, DC 20038, for a complete list of titles.

Vacation Study Programs

A study program abroad is a highly productive way to spend a vacation, whether from school or work. Many colleges, language schools, and other organizations offer a variety of summer and short-term programs that provide serious academic study for college students, heritage courses for adults interested in finding their roots, technical programs for professionals, and a wide range of courses for those who simply want to expand their horizons.

IEE's Vacation Study Abroad lists over 1,000 such programs. Many of them take place during the summer or during interim sessions in December or January. Recognizing that the desire to learn knows no age or season, however, an increasing number of organizations now offer study tours and other programs throughout the year.

Internships

Many foreign study programs feature internships designed to provide hands-on experience in a particular field, with placements at museums, schools, government offices, international organizations, etc. Most are developed in close consultation with faculty advisers and are tailored to suit the special needs of the student. An internship's success depends almost entirely on the initiative and creativity of the student.

Because of the growing popularity of internship programs and the special arrangements they involve, you must apply for a position and begin making arrangements well in advance. As with other types of programs, don't forget to clarify issues of costs, credit, salary, and housing. Use the Field of Study Index in this book to locate internship programs.

Voluntary Service Projects

International service projects, also called workcamps, offer opportunities to young people from all over the world to live and work together with local people in community development. Usually no special skills are required. Most projects take place during the summer for two or three weeks. There is no pay, but volunteers generally receive room and board.

FINANCES

Establish a budget to help determine which programs meet both your needs and financial capacity. Package fees for programs sponsored by U.S. colleges generally include transportation to and from the United States, tuition, fees, room and board, and program-related travel. Other major items are books, local transportation, and health and accident insurance.

Be especially careful to find out what program package fees do not cover. Admissions to cultural sites and events, gifts, optional travel, bank charges for exchanging money, and miscellaneous personal expenses are rarely included and can add up to a considerable sum. Always set aside some money for unexpected contingencies; they invariably occur.

The program costs listed in this book should always be viewed as approximate: they were submitted to IIE some 12 to 18 months prior to the actual program dates. Inflation and fluctuations in exchange rates over this period of time may force significant changes in these figures. Again, it is your responsibility to confirm program costs by contacting the sponsor directly.

Large amounts of cash should not be carried abroad. Traveler's checks are available in U.S. dollars and major foreign currencies. International charge cards and bank credit cards can also be used to avoid carrying large amounts of cash. In some countries, hard currency restrictions limit the amount of foreign currency which can be changed back into U.S. dollars, particularly if the original exchange receipts have been misplaced. Do not under any circumstances exchange money on the black market.

Scholarships

At present most financial assistance available for study abroad is for graduate and postgraduate study. Undergraduates with regular university scholarships, however, are generally allowed to use them for their own school's overseas programs. Your study-abroad adviser, financial aid officer, or bursar can advise you on the possibility of using federal and state aid for foreign study.

The Institute of International Education maintains a reference library with extensive scholarship and grant information at its Information Center at 809 United Nations Plaza in New York City. Information is available upon a personal visit to the Center—not by mail or telephone.

Work Abroad

The practice of working one's way through college is not common overseas, although some study programs include nonpaid work experience. Part-time work-study and trainee positions, which pay a small salary, are occasionally available, but cannot be relied upon to cover the bulk of your expenses overseas.

Summer work programs geared towards students, trainees, and volunteers characteristically offer room and board rather than a salary. Archaeological excavations, for example, often fall into this category.

Foreign labor laws are often highly restrictive. Be sure to investigate them thoroughly if you plan to seek work abroad—and don't plan to rely on work in the private sector to pay your way.

TRAVEL AND LIVING

After selecting a study program, it is time to prepare for life in a foreign country. Your study-abroad experience will have greater personal value if you take an active role in learning about the language, history, and culture of the country, as well as current social and political conditions.

Attend any orientation sessions offered by your program sponsors. The history and culture of the host country are usually reviewed in some detail. There may also be language exams and assigned readings. And you may have the opportunity to ask questions about issues that confuse you before they present real problems.

Books, periodicals, plays, films, and museum exhibits can provide additional information, as will the embassy, consulate, or tourist office of the country in which you plan to study.

People encountered abroad are frequently curious about the United States. As a consequence, you can expect to be hit with a barrage of questions about U.S. history, economics, culture, government policies, and current events. To be forewarned is to be forearmed!

Laws and Customs

Orientation sessions usually review the more important laws and customs students must comply with. These are not empty warnings. One of the biggest mistakes you can make is to assume that behavior and actions acceptable in the United States are appropriate everywhere, or that other countries will excuse inappropriate or illegal acts simply because you are a foreigner.

In many countries, for example, local cultural values dictate that certain parts of the body be covered, particularly in sacred places. Flouting such customs is perceived as a deliberate affront. In such situations, verbal protestations can escalate into threats or physical assaults. This is particularly true if the U.S. student is thought to be indifferent to the initial objections.

It is important to realize that civil rights issues are simply not involved. U.S. notions regarding freedom of speech and expression have no parallel in many countries. Even where the potential for violence is not an issue, students should realize that inappropriate behavior will tend to alienate them from the local populace.

Close adherence to the laws of the country in which you are living or traveling is even more important. It is unwise to rationalize that you are committing only a minor infraction when exchanging money on the black market or making purchases for foreign friends in hard currency shops that are off-limits for natives. Breaking the law—even a repressive, irrational, or antiquated one—is still breaking the law and can lead to severe penalties. At the very least, you can expect to be expelled from the program and deported from the country. U.S. programs are there at the sufferance of their hosts, and sponsors will not risk their programs to protect law-breaking students. Do not expect special intervention from U.S. consulates, either.

Narcotic laws are strictly enforced overseas, particularly when the offenders are foreigners. Harsh sentences, including life imprisonment or death, are not unknown, even in countries where natives may break such laws with impunity.

Warnings aside, there are few pleasures to compare with the experience of forming friendships with people who have spent their entire lives in a different milieu and who can communicate whole new perspectives on the most ordinary of life's experiences. Be sensitive rather than brash, and discover what life is like for others on this planet.

Accommodations

Student housing is difficult to find almost everywhere. Dormitory space is often so limited that many foreign universities have strict quotas for the number of rooms allotted to international students. Generally, U.S. students live in apartments, pensions, student hostels, or with families. Be sure to find out whose responsibility it is to make housing arrangements. Check with the program sponsors to see what arrangements they have made, and investigate the available alternatives. And remember to confirm all housing arrangements well ahead of departure.

Passports, Visas, and Vaccinations

Valid passports are required for travel abroad. You may apply in person to a passport agent at U.S. Department of State agencies in Boston, Chicago, Honolulu, Houston, Los Angeles, Miami, New Orleans, New York City, Philadelphia, San Francisco, Seattle, Stamford (Connecticut), or Washington, D.C. Passports are also issued through selected post offices, or by clerks of any federal court or state court of records. Proof of U.S. citizenship (birth certificate, naturalization certificate, or previous U.S. passport), two recent photographs (2" x 2"), and current identification with a personal signature and photograph or physical description (such as a driver's license) are required.

For citizens 18 years or older, a passport valid for ten years costs $35 plus a required $7 execution fee. A five-year passport for citizens under age 18 is $20 plus a required $7 execution fee. You must appear in person if you are applying for the first time, are renewing a passport issued over eight years ago, or were younger than 18 when your last passport was issued. Apply early: processing an application takes four to six weeks—longer during the peak travel season.

A visa is written permission to visit a country granted by the government of that country. Visa requirements vary from country to country and are fully described in Visa Requirements of Foreign Governments (Publication M-264) available at any passport agency or by writing to Office of Passport Services, Room 386, 1425 K Street NW, Washington, DC 20524.

Anyone planning to study in a country for an extended period of time may need to get a special student visa. Information relating to all visas may be obtained from the nearest embassy or consulate of the country concerned. Many visa applications require that you submit passport-type photographs to be kept on file or incorporated into the visa itself. It is always wise to obtain extra prints of your passport photographs for such purposes.

Vaccination certificates for inoculation against yellow fever, cholera, or malaria are required by some countries. Check current regulations with your local public health department.

Medical Insurance and Other Health Concerns

The importance of having adequate insurance when visiting another country cannot be overestimated. Before leaving the United States, check your medical and accident insurance policies to be sure they are valid while traveling overseas. If coverage does not extend to travel abroad, you may want to obtain supplemental medical and accident policies. Holders of the International Student Identity Card receive basic medical/accident insurance coverage for their travel outside the continental United States.

While it is easy to stay healthy abroad, in certain countries this requires taking some elementary precautions. Some countries, particularly those in tropical regions, have bacterial, fungal, and parasitical diseases which can be difficult to cure. Do not hesitate to ask about these during orientation sessions, and take the advice seriously.

If you require prescription medicines, even intermittently, be aware that foreign drugs are not necessarily closely related to those standard in the United States. Drugs may be marketed under different names and may not be available in the strengths you desire. It is wise to bring an adequate supply of any medication you need. Label all bottles clearly and carry copies of the prescriptions to avoid problems with Customs. In the case of narcotic medicines, it may not be prudent to carry additional supplies because of possible Customs difficulties. Reasonable amounts of nonprescription drugs, such as aspirin and stomach remedies, can come in handy when staying in some of the more remote regions of the world.

Finally, if you wear prescription eyeglasses or contact lenses, bring an extra pair and your prescription. This is particularly important with contact lenses, because the specific type of lens you wear may not be available abroad.

Transportation

Many U.S.-sponsored programs include group transportation to and from the program site. In others, students make their own arrangements. A good place to begin researching your travel options is the government tourist office of the country you will travel to; it provides a variety of free travel literature.

Deregulation in the airline industry has resulted in a proliferation of discounted airfares. Shop carefully if you are looking for an inexpensive flight; the cheapest flight is not necessarily the one that best suits your needs. Fares that specify a return date should be looked at particularly carefully, as these may not allow the flexibility you need.

Aim to travel lightly, especially if you will be participating in a study-tour. You will have to carry whatever you bring, so restrict yourself to one or two moderate-sized bags and a small carry-on bag in which to keep valuables, passport, and camera equipment. Insure your baggage and personal effects for the full period abroad. If you bring a camera, purchase a lead-lined film bag. Contrary to airport claims, some X-ray devices are ruinous to film.

Once abroad, railroads are often an economical and convenient way to travel. In Europe and Great Britain, Eurail and Britrail passes offer unlimited train travel at considerable savings to those who travel extensively. Eurailpasses are not valid in Britain but can be used on ferries between Italy and Greece, France and Ireland, and in Scandinavia. Rail passes are available from many travel agencies and must be purchased in the United States before your departure.

If you are considering renting a car, remember that in Britain, many Commonwealth countries, and Japan, cars drive on the left-hand side of the road. Your U.S. driver's license is generally accepted abroad, but it may be necessary to supplement it with an International Driver's License, which provides a multilingual translation of the information on your U.S. license and is available from your local AAA office.

An excellent source of information about student travel is the Council on International Educational Exchange (CIEE). CIEE publishes the Student Travel Catalog (annual, $1.00 postage and handling), and offers the International Student Identity Card as well as a wide range of student travel services. The International Student ID entitles the bearer to numerous discounts on transportation, accommodations, museum entrance fees, and more. Contact CIEE headquarters at 205 East 42nd Street, New York, NY 10017, or Council Travel offices in San Francisco, Berkeley, San Diego, Pacific Beach, Long Beach, Austin, Seattle, Boston, Amherst, Providence, and Portland.

IIE-ADMINISTERED PROGRAMS

IIE administers U.S. student applications for the following study programs:

- British Universities Summer Schools—a joint summer program conducted by the universities of Birmingham (at Stratford-upon-Avon), London, and Oxford in literature, drama, and history.
- British Archaeology—a summer program of the Association for Cultural Exchange in Cambridge involving both classroom work and participation in archaeological digs.
- Vienna and Salzburg Summer Schools—six-week programs in German language and Austrian culture. The Vienna program runs all year; the Salzburg program is summer only.
- Centro Linguistico Italiano Dante Alighieri—one- to four-week courses, year-round, in Italian language, culture, and cooking, in Florence, Siena, and Rome.
- Scuola Leonardo da Vinci—in Florence. One-week to four-month courses in Italian language; business, medical, and technical Italian; Italian culture, history, and literature; crafts; and special courses for teachers of Italian.

Partial scholarships are available for each of these programs. For applications and more information, write to IIE's U.S. Student Programs Division or your campus study-abroad adviser.

The Institute also administers the academic competition for the predoctoral Fulbright Program and the Fulbright Collaborative Research Program, both sponsored by the U.S. Information Agency, the ITT International Fellowship program, and a limited number of foreign government grants. IIE issues, receives, and screens applications and provides appropriate information on these financial aid programs. IIE-administered financial assistance programs for U.S. citizens to study abroad are described in the IIE publication Fulbright and Other Grants for Graduate Study Abroad published each May and available free of charge.

Students planning to apply for graduate awards through IIE should plan ahead. The application deadlines are typically October 31 of the year preceding the award for the predoctoral program and January 16 for the collaborative program. For more information, consult your campus study-abroad or Fulbright adviser.

Aside from these awards, the Institute does not offer any scholarships, awards, or loans for foreign study.

London 1988/89

Take your place in the world's best international law classroom-London.

The London Law Programme of the University of Detroit School of Law offers you an exceptional opportunity to study this growing field of law for either the fall or spring academic semester.

A unique seminar on the international monetary system and international banking and economics introduces the programme. You will then choose from among courses in international, comparative, British and American law.

You will be taught by an outstanding faculty of British and American university professors and lawyers based in London.

You will be able to participate in Moot Court, dine at Middle Temple, one of four Inns of Court, and be affiliated with the University of London Student's Union.

Application for admission to the programme will be accepted from second and third year students. Classes will be held on the campus of Regent's College in central London. Room and board arrangements are available.

Tuition costs are low and the programme is approved by the American Bar Association.

IMPERIAL COLLEGE OF SCIENCE AND TECHNOLOGY

Imperial College is a fully accredited constituent college of the University of London and is attractively situated in the Kensington area of London, close to the Royal Albert Hall and Hyde Park. The College has a worldwide reputation for academic excellence (there are currently two Nobel Laureates on the Professorial staff) and has trained scholars from all countries. In 1986-1987, the College had 4984 full time students (3286 undergraduates, 1698 postgraduates) and almost 600 faculty (headed by over 100 Professors of science and engineering).

Subjects taught at the College are as follows:

Aeronautics, Biochemistry, Biology, Chemical Engineering and Chemical Technology, Chemistry, Civil Engineering, Computing, Electrical Engineering, Geology, Management, Materials, Mathematics, Mechanical Engineering, Mineral Resources Engineering, Physics, and many interdisciplinary areas including History of Science and Technology.

For undergraduate American students, the College organises a Junior Year Abroad Program available in all the major science and engineering disciplines; participants are required to have a high grade point average especially in their major.

For graduate American students, there are nearly 50 specialist one year Master's programs available in almost all of the above areas; opportunities to undertake research over a 3 year program leading to the award of the PhD are also provided by all Departments and by the College's interdisciplinary Centres. A high grade point average will be required as a condition of admission.

NORTH STAFFORDSHIRE POLYTECHNIC

Certificate in English Law for Overseas Students

A one year course specially designed for American students likely to be taking either a year abroad during their first degree course, or a year out before proceeding to Law School. Successful completion is expected to gain 32-36 credits.

CONTENT: Based on the proven structure of the first year LL.B. (Honours) course (a CNA approved degree), the integrated curriculum includes Public Law, Contract, Tort, Crime and Introduction to the Social & Economic Structure of Modern Britain. It forms an excellent foundation for further legal studies in the U.S.A. or other countries whose national laws derive from Common Law.

VISITS: A feature of the course is a program of visits to legislative and judicial institutions in the U.K. and Europe. Trips to other places of interest can also be arranged, e.g. Stratford upon Avon, Warwick, York.

ACCOMMODATION: In modern apartments on campus, comprising individual study bedrooms with communal living room and kitchen, or from a wide selection of private rented housing.

LOCATION: In the city of Stoke-on-Trent, the center of U.K. pottery manufacture, with an impressive shopping complex, fine museums, sport and entertainment facilities. Surrounded by beautiful countryside, adjacent to the Peak District and with easy access to the Lake District, Snowdonia National Park and the historic heart of England. London is two hours away by train. Air links via Manchester and Birmingham are excellent.

COST: The cost of the 34 week program, including accommodation, tuition and scheduled visits (excl. air fares, meals and books) will be approx. 5000 pounds (at current exchange rates approx. $8,000).

This course is just one of the many offered at undergraduate and post-graduate level in a wide range of disciplines. North Staffordshire Polytechnic welcomes applications from overseas students. For a copy of the prospectus write to: The Information Officer at the address below

APPENDIX B

U.S. STUDY-ABROAD CENSUS

Each year, many thousands of U.S. citizens travel to other countries for educational purposes. In addition to formal academic programs of study, they participate in study tours, internships and practical training programs, research projects, adult courses, and voluntary work projects. They study at foreign colleges and universities, adult centers, language schools, business schools, cultural centers, workcamps, research centers, and a variety of other educational institutions.

And each year, the Institute of International Education is asked for information on these Americans abroad: the numbers, the types of programs, the host countries, and a flock of other questions that indicate an intense and growing interest on the part of the U.S. higher education community and the media, as well.

In response to these many requests for information, IIE has conducted an independent survey of the U.S. student population abroad—the first such survey since the 1982/83 academic year. The data are intended to serve those who plan the efficient use of university and college resources, those who design undergraduate curricula and overseas programs, and those who need to understand how many and which kinds of students are presently obtaining a significant portion of their education through study in a foreign country.

Scope of the IIE Survey

Because there is no effective way to gather data on all types of study programs from the wide range of U.S. and foreign organizations that sponsor them, the scope of this survey had to be narrowed considerably: to those undergraduate and graduate students who studied abroad for academic credit granted by U.S. colleges and universities.

The numbers of students receiving academic credit are inevitably lower than the totals of those participating in study-abroad programs of U.S. institutions and/or enrolled directly in foreign institutions. Though less than complete, however, the current effort offers the most comprehensive analysis available of this major sector of the U.S. study-abroad population.

Survey Method

In order to increase the reach and effectiveness of the survey, IIE engaged in extensive consultation with members of the Interassociational Committee on Data Collection (ICDC) and with administrators in the field of international education with special expertise in the field of foreign study. These discussions resulted in a questionnaire that asked for information on five items:

- the total number of students at a given institution who received academic credit for foreign study in the 1985/86 academic year;
- the countries in which these U.S. students studied;
- the subjects studied by U.S. students abroad;
- the length of time spent studying abroad; and
- the numbers of males and females who studied abroad.

Institutions Surveyed

IIE sent survey forms to the same university contacts used for the annual census of foreign students, with the request that the forms be passed on to a more appropriate campus official, if necessary. Forms were also sent to the study-abroad coordinators whose names appear on the mailing lists maintained by IIE's Publications Unit.

Survey Response (Table 1)

Surveys were mailed to a total of 2,896 U.S. institutions of postsecondary education. Responses were received from 1,898 institutions, for a response rate of 65.2%.

TABLE 1

Institutions Surveyed and Responses
Year	Institutions Surveyed	Responding Institutions	Total % Response
1986/87	2,896	1,898	65.2%

General Data (Tables 2, 3)

The 1,898 responding institutions reported a total of 48,483 students who received academic credit for study in another country during the summer of 1986 and the 1986/87 academic year. Among them, 87.8% were enrolled in study-abroad programs sponsored by U.S. colleges, 6.7% were directly enrolled in foreign schools, and 5.5% were in other types of programs.

Geographic Distribution by World Region

The vast majority of study-abroad students (76.8%) chose to study in Western Europe; Europe as a whole accounted for 79.6%. Lagging far behind Europe were Latin America, with 7.0% of the total population, Asia, with 5.4%, the Middle East, with 4.0%, and Africa, with 1.1%.

Leading Countries (Table 4)

Because of the concentration of U.S. students in one region (Europe), it is most useful to examine the country destinations of American students in terms of the worldwide distribution of the study-abroad population.

The top ten countries received eight out of ten Americans studying abroad (82.0%). The United Kingdom leads the way with 29.3% of all study-abroad students, followed by France with 13.7%. The others were Spain, Italy, Federal Republic of Germany, Mexico, Israel, Austria, Japan, and China.

All of the top five countries and six of the top ten are in Western Europe, two are in Asia, while the Middle East and Latin America have one each.

It is interesting to note that, in some regions, a single country accounted for almost all of the regional total. Israel, for example, had 1,862 of the 1,884 students in the Middle East. Similarly, Mexico received 4.2% of all study-abroad students worldwide, while all of Latin America accounted for only 7.0%.

Outside the major host regions, the student patterns are as follows: in Africa, Kenya was the largest receiver, with 252 students or 0.5% of the overall total. The leading country in Eastern Europe was the Soviet Union with 535 students, representing 1.1% of all study-abroad students. In North America, Canada was the only host country, with 422 students (0.9%), and finally in Oceania, Australia was the regional leader with 217 (0.5%).

STUDY-ABROAD CENSUS

Because many students studied in more than one country within a region, the country percentages add up to more than 100%. Percentage calculations are further complicated by the fact that a little over 1% of the European total is reported only as Europe, with no country specified.

Fields of Study (Table 5)

The most popular field of study abroad was liberal arts, chosen by 18.2% of the students. Another 16.7% studied foreign languages. Two other fields of study accounted for over 10% of all U.S. study-abroad students: social sciences (13.7%) and business/management (10.9%).

The fields studied by American students abroad, therefore, are significantly different from those of foreign students in the United States. Only 6.7% of Americans abroad chose engineering, physical and life sciences, and math and computer sciences. The corresponding figure for foreign students in the U.S. is 39.1%.

Duration of Study (Table 6)

A little over a third of all U.S. study-abroad students receiving academic credit spent one semester abroad (37.3%). Another 28.1% went abroad only for the summer, while 17.7% spent the entire academic year in a foreign country. 7.9% stayed for a single academic quarter and a scant 1% spent a full calendar year.

Gender (Table 7)

The gender distribution of U.S. students abroad was almost exactly the opposite of the foreign student population in the United States. Among U.S. study-abroad students, females (63.8%) outnumber males (36.2%) by nearly two to one. In contrast, 68.9% of foreign students in the U.S. are male and 31.1% are female.

Conclusion

The Institute hopes to conduct follow-up surveys in future years to track the development of this increasingly important aspect of U.S. higher education. We hope that the current data will be useful to U.S. colleges and universities in developing their policies toward study abroad and to foreign institutions that want to attract U.S. students to their study programs.

Graduate Study in Britain

The success of our British Programs for undergraduate students has led to an extension of our services to assist college graduates who seek to earn a British Master's Degree.

Among them, our eight cooperating University affiliates provide a very broad range of opportunities for qualified American graduates to undertake a one-year taught Master's Degree in Arts, Social Science, Science or Engineering. The Universities provide all instruction and grant the Degrees.

Applicants should have a cumulative g.p.a. of 3.0-3.5 or better in the subject to be continued for the Degree. Applications may be submitted through late Spring, but early application is advised.

British Graduate Degrees may be earned in any of the six Program locations above.

ACADEMIC YEAR ABROAD 1988-89

IIE's Comprehensive Guide to Academic Year Study-Abroad Programs

Use this book to plan study abroad that is productive for you. Learning while living in another country can provide the most life-enhancing experience of your educational career—if you make the right choice.

ACADEMIC YEAR ABROAD describes over 1200 programs worldwide offered by accredited U.S. colleges and universities. A new section provides information on over 400 additional programs sponsored by foreign universities, language schools, and other U.S. and foreign organizations which are not accredited U.S. higher educational institutions—information gathered and provided to you for the first time by IIE.

The Institute of International Education, the largest U.S. higher educational exchange agency, has published annual guides to study abroad for nearly 40 years. IIE is a nonprofit organization with over 550 member U.S. colleges and universities.

If you wish to purchase IIE's other guides to study abroad, fill out the enclosed order form for:
